Anheuser-Busch and the National Volunteer Fire Council are teaming up for the third year to provide critical hydration to volunteer fire departments responding to wildfires through the Emergency Drinking Water for Wildland Firefighters program.

The program is an expansion of Anheuser-Busch's longstanding tradition of providing emergency drinking water and supplies for disaster relief efforts. Anheuser-Busch is continuing its commitment in 2021 by pledging to donate 1.5 million cans of clean drinking water to help keep wildland firefighters hydrated as they protect and strengthen their communities.

To apply, departments must be located in the U.S., annually respond to wildfires, be over 50 percent volunteer, and serve a population of 25,000 or less.

Since the program began in 2019, over 3.2 million cans of water have been distributed to more than 520 departments in 47 states. Departments in declared emergencies due to wildfire are able to request water outside of the application period to help with their immediate wildfire response needs.

The application deadline is April 23.
