Board & Administrator

FOR SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS

June 2019 Vol. 33, No. 2

Editor: Jeff Stratton

Insight into the superintendent selection process: Part 4

When my wife Sue and I arrived for the second round of interviews in Charlotte, the schedule was packed, including an awkward 15 minutes first start to the day where the three finalists and two of the spouses were all sequestered in a conference room together. Let's just say the atmosphere was pretty cold in that room!

Once the day officially began, Sue went out for a tour of the city with a member of the district's communications team, and I embarked on a full day of activities, which were all public and attended by a crowd of people. It was like taking a physical exam in public. The day included another interview with the board and a series of panel interviews, including teachers, parents, elected officials, the business community, and students. The most pointed question that day came from a teacher who asked what I was going to do about managed instruction that had "sucked the soul out of teaching."

The whirlwind day ended with a public forum. Each candidate made an opening statement, and then the floor was open for questions. Most people asked very specific questions about education, but I distinctly recall fielding one question about my favorite barbecue. (For the uninitiated, barbecue is a topic fiercely debated in Charlotte, where different styles of sauce have strong advocates!)

That evening, Sue and I returned to our hotel and debriefed, each of us reporting our experiences to the other. It didn't take long for us to reach a shared conclusion: We wanted to be part of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg community.

The next day, I met first with the board chair, who told me that I had been received well and the board planned to make a decision quickly. I then had a series of one-on-one meetings with board members, who asked a series of follow-up questions to go deeper on various issues.

The morning after we returned to California, I called my attorney; I wanted to talk through the status of the process with her.

I trusted my attorney's guidance. A few years earlier, I had interviewed for and was offered the position of superintendent in one of the country's 25 largest districts. We negotiated a contract and after agreeing to the contract, the district wanted to change the terms of the contract the day before my family and I were to fly out and be introduced to the community. My attorney advised me to withdraw from the search, citing integrity issues. She said if they change the rules of the game when they are courting you before you are hired, imagine what will happen later. To this day, she is still my attorney and trusted adviser.

On the first day I was back in California, the board's general counsel contacted me and said that I was the board's choice.

My skills, experiences, attributes, temperament, and who I followed helped me be the right choice. The nine members of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Education wanted a superintendent who would be the face of the district.

So I was fully prepared on all fronts. But I also quickly learned that having nine bosses — the nine members of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Education — was going to be far more challenging than I had anticipated. ■

Advisory committees: Direct them with guidelines and rules

Advisory committees to the board need rules to guide them, always keeping in mind the board is the board and the committee doesn't have the same power.

The board may appoint standing committees; however, no individual member or group comprising less than the full board membership shall exercise the powers of the full board. (Note: This provision clearly limits the authority of the advisory group.)

With the approval or at the direction of the board, the board president may appoint temporary ad hoc and/or advisory committees to assist the board. (Note: An important provision to include, because the board president's authority comes from the full board.)

The following guidelines shall apply to all temporary ad hoc or advisory committees:

- Committees shall be appointed for a specific and well-defined purpose. Their authority shall be limited to that assigned to them by the full board. (Note: This clause clearly states the committee works under the authority of the full board.)

- All committees shall be fact-finding or advisory in nature, and do not have decision-making authority. Committees and committee members shall not have the power to make monetary or other decisions for the board. (Note: An important limitation on the power of advisory groups — they don't make decisions, they make recommendations.)

- The board will provide such committees with a suitable meeting place and administrative support. The administrator or the administrator's designee shall be a member of each advisory committee. (Note: A vital rule, because it makes the superintendent a participant in the advisory group's work.)

- All reports of any advisory committee shall be made in writing to only the board and superintendent. (Note: This provision clarifies reporting responsibilities, and includes the administrator in the chain of command at the top.)

- Committees shall be dissolved upon completion of their assigned tasks. (Note: A must-have guideline.) ■

Disruptive board members: What are the board's options?

Attorney Gary Brochu in his webinar, Board Member Boot Camp: Board Member Conduct, discussed what a board can and cannot do when faced with disruptive board members.

Brochu (Shipman & Goodwin LLP, Hartford, Conn.) cautions that these recommendations apply to Connecticut school boards, so be sure to check with your own counsel for what is legal in your state.

What a board cannot do:

- Vote off or otherwise remove a board member from the board.
- Suspend a member from board service or prevent him from attending or participating in meetings.
- Prohibit a member from voting or otherwise exercising her statutory rights as a board member.

What a board can do:

- Prevent a board member from visiting schools or attending school events, Brochu said.
- Direct that all board member communications go through the president or superintendent.
- Prevent a trustee from meeting with staff members as a board member, Brochu said.
- Publicly express disapproval of a member's conduct, Brochu said.

What are some of the main reasons for board

member misconduct?

- Members are unfamiliar with the law or board procedures.
- The board member doesn't understand board member's roles and responsibility. "This is one-half of the concerns we hear," Brochu said. "Some board members want to run the district as opposed to lead it."
- The board member feels compelled to represent the interests of a single group.
- They are focused on a single issue. They have complaints about a sports team or want to get rid of a specific staff member, Brochu said.
- The board member has a personality conflict with other trustees or staff, Brochu said.
- The trustee is not respectful of the board as a collective body. "They think they have authority as an individual and believe they can work independently," Brochu said.
- They are not a nice person, Brochu said. "They are mean or vindictive," he said.

Definition of Bullying. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention defines bullying as “any unwanted aggressive behavior(s) by another youth or group of youths who are not siblings or current dating partners that involves an observed or perceived power imbalance and is repeated multiple times or is highly likely to be repeated.” Nebraska statute defines bullying as “an ongoing pattern of physical, verbal or electronic abuse.” The District’s administrators are authorized to use both of these definitions to determine whether any specific situation constitutes bullying. Both of these definitions include both in-person and cyberbullying behaviors.

Bullying Prohibited. Students are prohibited from engaging in any form of bullying behavior.

Disciplinary Consequences. The disciplinary consequences for bullying behavior will depend on the frequency, duration, severity and effect of the behavior.

A student who engages in bullying behavior on school grounds, in a vehicle owned, leased, or contracted by a school being used for a school purpose by a school employee or his or her designee, or at school-sponsored activities or school-sponsored athletic events may be subject to disciplinary consequences including but not limited to long-term suspension, expulsion, or mandatory reassignment.

Without limiting the foregoing, a student who engages in bullying behavior that materially and substantially interferes with or disrupts the educational environment, the district’s day-to-day operations, or the education process, regardless of where the student is at the time of engaging in the bullying behavior, may be subject to discipline to the extent permitted by law.

Bullying Based on Protected Class Status. Bullying based on protected class status is unique and may require additional investigation. The appropriate district staff member or coordinator will promptly investigate bullying complaints that violate the district’s antidiscrimination policies.

Support for Students Who Have Experienced Bullying. Regardless of where the bullying occurred, the district will consider whether victims of bullying are suffering an adverse educational impact and, if appropriate, will refer those students to the district’s student assistance team.

Bullying Prevention and Education. Students and parents are encouraged to inform teachers or administrators orally or in writing about bullying behavior or suspected bullying behavior. School employees are required to inform the administrator of all such reports. The appropriate administrator shall promptly investigate all such reports. Each building shall engage in activities which educate students about bullying, bullying prevention and digital citizenship.

Policy Review. The school district shall review this policy annually.
