I.E.1. Maintenance/Transportation Staff

Mike Grutsch, Director of Buildings and Grounds, said the maintenance department has been busy since last year. They have finished the spillway at the high school, removed dead trees and stumps around Duncan, and poured sidewalk on the north side of Duncan because the fire marshal said there needed to be additional exits. The paint crew painted Emerson last summer, and the sod put in last year has taken hold pretty good. The pine trees were removed from the north side of Lost Creek. A new playground was installed at West Park for the preschool. One of the best purchases was the new Bobcat Toolcat with attachments. Grutsch said this machine can mow and move snow. One unexpected expense was the replacement of the HVAC at the Administration Building. The district only ended up paying $1,000 out of the $46,000 total because it was caused by an electrical surge and insurance covered the rest. Plans for this summer include: pouring more sidewalk at Duncan; pouring a spillway at Centennial; pouring concrete at southwest corner of Emerson; replacing kindergarten floors at Emerson with sheet vinyl; and replacing the floor at West Park with carpet tiles. Grutsch said he has hired two possibly three kids for the summer, and their main job is to stay after the weeds and mow. He said the biggest unknown for next year will be the new CHS building. Grutsch said 10 years ago CPS used to sub all work out, and now the maintenance department can do most things themselves. Superintendent Dr. Troy Loeffelholz said Grutsch has done a nice job and with his background in construction he has asked a lot of questions about the building of the new high school. Transportation Coordinator Dawn Olson said last year busing roughly traveled 58,500 miles in town for door-to-door service for special needs kids. The average bus goes about 50 miles per day per route. There are students being transported in the morning, mid-day and afternoon. There are 123 students picked up daily. The buses have gone 52,500 miles for activities. In addition to sports the buses are also used for field trips, by the choir and band, and for various other reasons. The over the road bus has 614,000 miles on it. An OTR will do a million plus before it needs to be replaced. The oldest bus has 226,000 miles and doesn't travel out of town very often. Olson said she is looking at starting a defensive driving course for the transportation department to help keep people's skills sharp. She said she would like to get a bus between the large and small buses. Olson said she has been one route driver short this year and has hired two new drivers. She said there are six activity drivers but four have other jobs. Olson said she is having trouble finding drivers. This year they also implemented a buddy system where someone beside the driver must check the bus when it returns to make sure nothing or anyone was left on it. Executive Director of Business/Human Relations Dave Melick said safety drills have improved since Olson has taken over. This year the high school had its first drill the day of registration. The second one will be done next week. CMS has already had two drills this year. The elementary schools drills are done during PE so no instructional time is lost. Olson said each driver also does a drill with students on the bus.

Melick said he went to a school business officials meeting last week. Under a new bill, a Board of Education can vote electronically on an iPad or still do a roll call vote. Melick said there are districts doing this already, but the bill doesn't go into effect until August. He said this still doesn't allow board members to vote remotely. They must be at the meeting to vote. Melick told the board they can change to electronic voting in August if they want. At this meeting, he attended a session on credit cards. He said districts need to register with the department of revenue all credit cards. He said there are currently 19 credit cards through First National Bank. Melick said he also learned that the board must approve all users for the credit cards. He said he will begin working on this process. Melick said the district's attorney is looking into how to handle the credit cards that can be checked out by anyone in the district and if all staff names must be listed. He said he also found out there is a state statute that says if a person fails to return a detailed receipt his or her credit card will be deactivated and the person will be suspended from further use
